Salt Lake Printer Dies Suddenly at

at the Alta Club.

Medical societies was tendered a feast last night by their confrers of the Alta lub. There was nothing scanty in any letail of the affair. There was an abundance of the most delectable food that could be obtained, and a profusion of wit, wine, but no women. The large dining room on the second floor was leaves, and the tables were set around the room in the form of a hollow square.

On the tables rested pot plants and American Beauty roses, and there was whole heartodness to the occasion which was attested in the peals of laughter and the brilliant sallies that were passed back and forth across the table, all of which kept the company in a joytal happy mood. Not least among the factors that helped to promote the excellent good feeling was Olsen's orchestra, which discoursed popular airs. And the developments of the evening proved that even doctors are not averse to a little fag-time occasionally.
