

CLEMENCEAU WINS SIGNAL VICTORY

His Policy Regarding Postal Strikes Emotionally Endorsed By a Vote of 454 to 59.

GOVERNMENT IS SUSTAINED

It Has Other Plans in View to Offset Any Serious Growth of Strike—Strikers Disappointed.

Paris, May 13.—A turbulent session of the chamber of deputies today ended in another signal victory for Premier Clemenceau, when the government's policy with regard to the postal strike was emphatically endorsed by a vote of 454 to 59, including also the government's insistence that the postal employees and other functionaries have no right to strike.

Immediately afterward the chamber passed a vote of general confidence in the government of 365 to 159.

The strikers received the chamber's rebuke with a shrug of the shoulders, declaring it only served to bind closer their forces, which would soon startle the country by a big increase and a rapid extension of the general movement. On the other hand, it is intimated that the government has other plans in view to offset any serious growth of the strike.

STRIKE WAXING.

Up to midnight there was no change in the situation. If anything, it was in the direction of a weakening of the strike sentiment. The general conviction is that if the government does not make vast strides tomorrow, it is almost certain of complete failure.

M. Barthou, minister of public works, posts and telegraphs, asserted during the debate that only 2,367 out of 24,200 postal employees in Paris and the department of the Seine are out, and the conditions in the provinces were even better.

WILD SCENES IN CHAMBER.

There were wild scenes in the chamber of deputies this afternoon when the government asked for a vote of confidence on the attitude assumed by it in the strike of the government employees. M. Sembat and M. Jaures warmly defended the stand taken by the postmen, and the latter declared that the battle which had begun would not end until the syndicate was completely broken.

M. Combarousse, Radical Republican, intervened and virtually charged the Socialists with being the tools of the reactionaries. He declared specifically that M. Morrel owed his seat to the Duke d'Uzes. Instantly the chamber was in an uproar. M. Morrel tried in vain to make himself heard above the clamor, and M. Brisson, president of the chamber, clapped his hat on his head as a sign that the session was closed.

The tumult, however, continued. One of the delegates bounded over the presidential chair, grabbed the bell and rang furiously. Then the Socialists began singing the "Internationale," to which M. Baudry d'Asson and his Royalist colleagues, standing on chairs, replied by singing "Vive Henri IV."

GALLERIES CLEARED.

Finally the public and press galleries were cleared, but there was frantic clamor both inside and outside of the chamber. M. d'Asson climbed the tribune, and with the Socialists shouting and singing, he tried to harangue the deputies. Outside in the corridors several persons who raised the cry "Vive Henri IV" were seized by the police.

Premier Clemenceau and the ministers remained on their benches. At first it was apparent that they were amused, but later they grew indignant at this scandalous exhibition in the midst of a serious debate and summoned the sergeant-at-arms, who ejected M. d'Asson and closed the steps of the tribune.

After trying to break loose he used his pocket knife to pry open the shell, but broke both blades. To add to his terror the tide began to creep up and soon was up to his knees. For two hours he was held prisoner, until finally his cries were heard by a Japanese fisherman who succeeded in releasing him. He was not injured but the shock to his nerves sent him to bed.

MISS NORA ISELIN AND FIANCE, COUNT MANNSFELD.

Preparations for the wedding of Miss Nora Iselin and Count Coloredo Mannsfeld were attended by many rumors of disagreement on the part of the young woman's father regarding the settlement of $2,000,000 on the bridegroom. The illness of C. Oliver Iselin also lent color to the report that he would not attend the wedding ceremony. When the young couple called on Mgr. Lavelle at St. Patrick's cathedral to arrange for the marriage they both denied that there was any foundation for the reports that the wedding would be delayed. This photograph was taken as Miss Iselin and the count were leaving the cathedral. The floral decorations in the Iselin town house in preparation for the wedding were unique in the fact that all the flowers were fruit blossoms. The drawing rooms, halls and diningroom resembled a vast orchard, so profuse was the arrangement of blossom-laden apple boughs.

WHOOPIING COUGH.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Dr. Robert McKee of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when nine months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

Any Beauty Doctor will tell you—that good digestion and an active liver are the base of good looks, as they are also the basis of good temper and calm nerves.

It is in the digestive tracts that the food is assimilated, the blood created, and the nourishment of the body prepared so that each remote part will get its share. You can easily understand, then, that if this important function is disturbed the entire body will suffer. The skin becomes pallid and flabby, the bloom of health disappears, the eyes become sunken, and whatever beauty you may have boasted of, is lost. At the same time, the nerves, woman's excuse for many woes, become unstrung. Disorder and discord take the place of harmony. Many of the ills from which women suffer are due to disordered nerves, and these, in turn, are due to impaired digestion.
