preparatory school work and become feeders of the University. Some of the arguments advanced in favor of the Church schools continuing in the line parsimonious. We expect a man who is very pullte in public to be the same in his home, but often find him the very reverse—the specific has something to was marked out and increasing their facilities for imparting higher educa-tion may be generalized as follows: That the state should first direct its do with the general, but not so much as we expect. Excess in eagerness for new ideas-efforts to give all its children equal educational advantages, and increase So eager are we for the new that we often fail to utilize the old. Ideas are treated like a child treats a toy, and we the standard of the common school system; that the proportion of means now expended by the state is less than are not careful enough to crystalize a $12 per annum for pupils in the com-mon schools and from $40 to $60 for stuthought so that it becomes ours until we chase after another. dents in the University, which is un-fair to the great majority of its future

Excess in intellectual demands-The male and the female are required to lift the same educational weight, when one should be employed at digging and the other at polishing; for the average female the higher mathematics is an excessive requirements. We read too much and remember too little, and think not near enough; and should read no books that we do not think Excesses in Teaching-Some of us are guilty of excess in illustration to are private institutions. That the extent that the pupil forgets the idea and remembers only the illustrahe Brigham Young academy and other, hurch institutions should be let alone hat it is only a matter of time before he academy will have all the money it We are excessive in negative Hon: teaching-trying to make people good by telling them how bad some other people have been; preachers, teachers needs and become the great school its founder intended it to become, preand parents are alike guilty of this; but it is not God's plan of making man pared to give a university education supplemented with technical instrucbetter, as will be seen by perusing the tions and manual training in trades New Testament.

During the discussion, Professor Nel-son on the point of negative teaching, called attention to the fact that, while the ten commandments were mostly negative, Christ saw them as posi-tive and comprised them in two: to love the Lord and to love our neighbor as ourselves. At the close, Professor Brimhall advanced as a question-not as a state ment-whether it was not an excess fo the State to expend from $40 to $60 annually for the education of a student at the University, while (outside of Salt Lake City) the contribution for the education of the pupils-the great the education of the pupils—the great majority of whom cannot attend the University—is less than $7.50 annually for each pupil. "Anything done to the help of the few to the hurt of the many is excessively un-American."
